WASHINGTON BUSINESS JOURNAL SELECTS KINGFISHER SYSTEMS, INC. AS A TOP-PERFORMING SMALL TECHNOLOGY COMPANY

CHANTILLY, VIRGINIA, August 30, 2024. The Washington Business Journal, a highly regarded weekly publication, has once again acknowledged Kingfisher Systems, Inc. (Kingfisher) as one of the top technology companies in Greater Washington, District of Columbia. Kingfisher's consistent performance secured the #18 spot for the second consecutive year, a testament to Kingfisher's impressive growth and financial stability. The Washington Business Journal, known for comprehensive industry coverage, is a leading source of regional business news, insights, and data. Additionally, the Washington Business Journal has consistently included Kingfisher on the Largest Cybersecurity Companies list for 2020, 2022, and 2023, reaffirming Kingfisher's status as a recognized leader in the Information Technology industry.

Founded in 2005, Kingfisher has emerged as a dynamic Small Business, steadfastly delivering premier Cybersecurity, Enterprise Information Technology, Satellite Communications, and National Security services. Kingfisher proudly supports the Department of Defense, Intelligence Community, and numerous Civilian Agencies. Over the past 19 years, Kingfisher has consistently provided groundbreaking technical solutions and unmatched operational support, revolutionizing support to Kingfisher's customers. Under the leadership of Chief Executive Officer (CEO) Roy L. Reed, Jr., Kingfisher continues forward with a clear vision of excellence and innovation. CEO Roy L. Reed, Jr. stated, "We are thrilled to be acknowledged by the Washington Business Journal once again. This recognition underscores our dedication to operational excellence and our relentless pursuit of technological innovation. Our Team's passion and expertise are the driving forces behind our success. It is our honor to continue making a positive impact."
